GEOLOGICAL CABINETS,

Showing the elements and structure of the globe and of course furnishing an interesting and inand of course lithisting all interesting and activative lesson to every person on the globe, are prepared and sold at the "Exchange Lyceum," 348 Broadway, corner of Leonard street, in the building of the N. Y. Society Library. By an acquaintance with the 25 specimens composing one of the cabinets, which can be acquired in a week, even by a child 3 years old, a person may under stand the rocks and much of the country in any part of the world he may visit.

Such a lesson furnished to children by their Creator, the same also as in the first chapter in the Bible, greatly animates and aids them in their school lessons, and is hence a great saving of money for books and tuition, as it is of morals, by furnishing a more delightful amusement, than those sports, which are both expensive and de-

As such a Cabinet furnishes a highly interest-ing and appropriate "First Lesson" for children, and ought in all cases to precede the alphabet, or any other lesson from books, it is a most convenient and economical article for every family.

Price, $1 50 only. Tickets of membership to the Exchange Lyceum, giving admission to the Depository, to various meetings, Scientific Excursions, &c., may be had at the same place, at one dollar. Also, the "Self Instructor," a monthly Journal, designed to aid parents in fireside and table education, and all classes in the great work of Self Improvement, at 50 cents for 12 numbers. The attention of parents is particularly invited to the Exchange Lyceum, designed to aid domes. tic education, by gratifying children with aiding in " the diffusion of knowledge over the globe."

Dr. Mc Munn's Elixir of Opium. octor McMunn, dear Doctor McMunn. Without your elixir, what should I have done And I've no hesitation, new I've begun, To say that Dame Nature had never a son

So favored of Heaven, so wise as this one . "Twould be capital fun,-Forgive the bad pun,-I suffered by night, and I suffered by day.

Till this blessed Elixir was thrown in my way; And I never shall cease for the Doctor to pray Till these eyes have grown dim and this hair has grown grey, For I never dared hope that this body of clay

Could ever be propped in such masterly way .

And now i will say. To be sick is but play While Doctor McMann is my hope and my stay And I speak quite in earnest, and nothing in fus, When I say, that of all Doctors under the sau, That glory and honor, and riches have won, Since old Father Time on his race-horse has run. There is not one equal to Doctor McMuns
No. not one in twenty,

With nostrums in pleaty, Could do half the good his Elixir has done, T is good for a fever, and good for a cold ; 'T is good for the young, and good for the old;
'T is good for the timid, and good for the bold-

The half of its virtues have never been told. 'T is better than silver, and better than go'd; 'T is the very best medicine that ever was sold; Twill put you to sleep, In a slumber so deep,

You will not be roused by the voice of a scold. I've no doubt in my mind, it has saved many lives-As I know it prolonged that of old Doctor Ives; From its use, Doctor Hulse, too, affirms he derives Such relief, that e'en in consumption he thrives. What a pity it had not been known to poor Dives, The one who in Hades unceasingly strives, With his thirst and his anguish, he would not so soon

Have cried for the water, Expect, any more than the Man in the Moon. 'Pis strange that so many a learned M. D.

So very unwise and uaskilful will be, As to use the Morphine when it does not agree, With the nerves of one half of the people they see, And when Doctor McMuun to their use is so free. If the savans so sage would but listen to me,
A lesson I'd teach,

Of importance to each, How this anodyne suits every ill to a T. I have tested its virtues when horribly blue, And well do I know all the good it can do, How some it will east when a man's in a stew And I've only to say, that I wish people knew And how soon it relieves Hysteria too;

How it works like a charm, And never does harm, But makes one to feel so delightfully calm.

DR. McMUNN'S ELIXIR OF OPIUM.

A NEW chemical preparation of Opium, embracing al A the valuable medicinal properties of Opium to the exclusion of those whice are deterrious and useless. The Morphine Codein and Narcein in combination with the native Meconic Acid, are all retained in their origins purity, and hence the superiority of this preparation is much preferable to every other form of optate, such as La-danum. Paregoric, Morphine, Denarcatized Laudanum, &c., &c., as has been fully proved and duly achino-ledged by the most emiront surgeons, physiciaus and chemists.
